Re: Docket No. 07-16

Dear Secretary Dortch:

As an elected official, I am extremely troubled by the persistent in quality planning our nation. Long existing inequities in education and income are exacerbated by growing digital divide between those with access to the internet and those without it.

M2Z Networks has proposed a plan to extend basic free broadband internet service to nearly the entire American population. While the relative merits of M2Z Networks' plan need to be examined in greater detail, I believe that the plan serves as a useful starting point for further dialogue on the important subject of providing expanded internet access to millions of Americans. I urge the Federal Communications Commission to support the establishment of nationwide, family-friendly, and free internet access and to examine the best means of doing so in accordance with sound principles of public policy. The time to move forward on this urgent issue is now.

Sincerely,
